4. [redacted] FDD personnel are currently enrolled in language courses under the CIA training program. Languages studied include Chinese, Turkish, Burmese, Hebrew, Polish, and Hindi.

25X1A

5. [redacted] Scientific and Technical Branch, FDD, attended the combined meeting, in New York, of the American Chemical Society, of which he is a member, and the International Congress of Chemistry. He has reported upon the meetings.

6. During the month, a number of FDD personnel performed external duties in other offices of CIA; one person was loaned to OCI for two weeks; one to Contact Division; and several persons reviewed foreign films in Graphics Register to ascertain their intelligence content.

7. A survey of 15 non-Russian-language republic newspapers was undertaken to determine whether or not their processing would contribute to current intelligence information on the USSR. The survey revealed that, although some 40 percent of their contents was not found in the Russian-language Soviet press, only a small part of this 40 percent represented information of possible intelligence value.

8. Among material received from State were two Soviet periodicals not recently available in the US. Meteorologiya i Gidrologiya (Meteorology and Hydrology), which had not been received in FDD since 1947, was made available in the September-December 1950 issues; Avtomatika i Telemekhanika (Automatics and Telemechanics), not received since 1949, was made available in all 1950 issues and the first two issues of 1951.
